CO. SEAT COUNCIL OBJECTS TO PARADE THERE ON MAY DAY

United Farmers' Protective Association Requests Parade Permission

IS NO LAW AGAINST IT

American Legion is Not in Favor of Such a Demonstration

DOYLESTOWN, April 25.—Although members of Borough Council at a special meeting looked unfavorably upon the application of a member of the United Farmers' Protective Association for a permit to stage a "May Day" parade in Doylestown on Tuesday, May 2, they finally decided that Council had no jurisdiction in the matter.

The application was presented to Council by John Hermann, of Erwinna, who told A. Harry Clayton, president of council, that he was a member of the United Farmers' Protective Association and that members of the organization to which he belonged, desired to stage the "May Day" parade in the County Seat.

Hermann, who recently led a parade on the Bucks County Administration building demanding work for unemployed, and who later marched with a group of protesting farmers on the home of a Doylestown woman to demand relief orders, told Council that May Day was the "international labor day for the working class."

"Are you a farmer?" President Clayton asked Hermann.

"Yes, I am a subsistence farmer and a writer," Hermann answered. "I certainly never thought that the Council of Doylestown Borough would have the least bit of objection to granting a permit to parade in Doylestown on May Day. It will be an orderly affair and any banners that might be carried will be entirely within the law."

Hermann told Council that he had lived in Bucks County about seven years and that he lived in New York before that. He then informed Council that if they did not issue a permit to allow them to parade the "farmers he represented would parade just the same."

When Hermann told Council that various organizations, including religious bodies, fraternal organizations and the American Legion would be in the line of march with them on May Day, a member of the American Legion, in attendance at the meeting, jumped to his feet and informed Hermann that under no condition does the American Legion favor, sponsor or support any May Day demonstrations anywhere throughout the world, and that contrary to Mr. Hermann's statement, the Legion advocates that such observances not be permitted, if there are local ordinances to prevent it.

Councilman George Willard made a motion that the application be denied and the motion was quickly seconded. After every member of Council had expressed his opposition, it was discovered that Council as a body has no authority in the matter since the police powers are entirely in the hands of the Burgess.

Council finally decided to communicate with Hermann, notifying him that no action was taken on the application because Council at this time has no power in the matter. It was strongly intimated that a protest against a May Day parade will be voiced by the A. R. Atkinson, Jr., Post, No. 210, American Legion.

"All that can be done is to make arrests if the parade becomes a public nuisance," President Clayton said.

"It is a shame and a disgrace that we have no law at this time to prevent such a disgusting affair, in which public officials are blackguarded," said another member of Council.

The meeting was called for the purpose of awarding bids for street material to be used in Doylestown this year.

Select Site For State Liquor Store, Morrisville

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 25.—A site has been selected for a State Liquor Store here, according to an announcement made today.

The store is to be located at the N. E. corner of East Bridge street and North Delmor avenue.

When the four towns were originally selected in which liquor stores were to be located in Bucks County, and this borough was not included, there was a protest made at once, that Morrisville should have a State Liquor Store.

Petitions were circulated and then after the residents of Newtown had protested over the location of a store in that borough, impetus was given to the movement to have one locate here.

FIRST WARD GIRLS

All First Ward girls desiring to participate in the parade of Youth Week on Saturday are asked to meet tonight at 205 Cedar street at six o'clock.

Musical Review Given At Fire Co. Meeting

Pelegrina's Musical Review given by six professional entertainers was the main attraction on the entertainment program at the meeting of the Consolidated Fire Department, last night.

The meeting was held in the assembly room of the Municipal Building and but a short period of time was devoted to the transaction of business.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served.

The meeting was largely attended.

DILLINGER AND MOB FENCED IN IN TWO CITIES

Minneapolis Surrounded By Cordon of Police, Who Are Heavily Armed

TO SHOOT TO KILL

ST. PAUL, Minn., Apr. 25.—Fenced within the twin cities by an army of heavily armed Federal, state and city officials, many of them protected by bullet proof vests, John Dillinger and his mob of desperados were still eluding capture today.

With this city of Minneapolis surrounded by a cordon of police under orders to "shoot to kill," it was a virtual impossibility for the nation's foremost criminal to get away from here into the adjacent country. Convinced that the notorious Indiana gunman is within the city limits, the authorities were concentrating their efforts to "smoke him out."

Chagrined over the desperado's latest escape Federal men kept silent as to their plans and were apparently conducting their own investigation in the search. During this recent career of lawlessness it has become increasingly apparent that Dillinger favors St. Louis as his base of operations.

That the super desperado was planning to flee to the St. Paul vicinity when hard pressed, was pointed out when a costly automobile was found concealed in a private garage at Rochester, Minnesota. Dillinger at the point of a machine gun, had stolen the sedan from the chauffeur of Mrs. Herman Stern. The chauffeur positively identified the outlaw at that time.

Travelling Gavel Arrives At Carversville Grange

Members of Delaware Valley Grange recently presented the traveling gavel to Carversville Grange which met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Walton, Carversville.

The gavel was presented to the master of Carversville Grange, Howard Paxson, by master of Delaware Valley Grange, Joseph A. Smith. The program of the evening was in charge of lecturer, Ella Heavener.

Mrs. Joseph A. Smith, Miss Anna Wright and Alvin Smith gave readings; Mrs. Clinton Neagle, Mrs. Jenny Sthen and Lillie Wilson sang "Blue Bells of Scotland"; and Herman Heavener, Joseph A. Smith and Lillie Wilson gave a short sketch, "The Bolster Man."

The members who accompanied the gavel were Master Joseph A. Smith, Mrs. Joseph A. Smith, Mrs. Jenny Sthen, Mrs. Agnes Walker, Mrs. Clinton Neagle, Miss Jennie Moon, Miss Rose Wright, Miss Anna Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Heavener, Miss Lillie Wilson, Walter Campbell, Alvin Smith.

Oldest Resident In Bucks County Dies

DUBLIN, Apr. 25.—Believed to have been one of the oldest, if not the oldest resident in Bucks county, Matilda, nee Snyder, widow of John F. Haines, died at the home of her son, Sumner F. Haines, about a mile south of this borough, Sunday evening at the age of 102 years, 3 months and 25 days.

The deceased, although having been confined to her home because of old age for more than 25 years, is said to have been able to recall many events which took place when she was a small girl when she lived in Northampton county near Easton, where she was born.

Mrs. Haines has been a resident of this community for more than half a century. Her husband, who had been in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for many years, died in 1901. Before taking up their residence in this section Mr. and Mrs. Haines resided in Philadelphia. For the past 23 years Mrs. Haines has been living with her son, Sumner F. Haines.

Mrs. Haines was born in Northampton county, near Easton, a daughter of the late Joseph and Catherine Snyder.

Among her survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Elma A. Worman, Gardenville; four sons, Oscar S. Haines, Pine Beach, N. J.; J. Howard Haines, Quakertown; Sumner F. Haines, of near this place, and Lincoln P. Haines, Lansdale; 28 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

FIRST WARD BOYS

First ward boys will meet tonight on Leedom's Field at 6:30 o'clock. John Black, leader, urges all the boys to attend.

All fourth ward trackmen are asked to report at the Corson street field every night at six o'clock.

Hilarious Comedy Gives Ideas for Raising Cash

If you are ever in immediate need of a little cash and don't know just how to raise it, just buy a ticket for "One More Leg To Go" which St. Ann's Guild will present on April 29 and 30th in St. Ann's School Auditorium for the benefit of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

You will learn something about the solution of small money troubles that never occurred to you.

Your heart will go out to Bill Janney and his wife. Advice is given not to do as Bill did, however, until the pockets of every old garment, and the recesses of every old bit of furniture have been thoroughly searched. Failing these, don't forget to look under the carpet. Money has a habit of bobbing up in the most unexpected places—for the other fellow!

Procure seats now for the comedy, "One More Leg To Go," which set New York roaring with laughter when it was produced in that city.

Richard Sabatini plays the leading role as Bill Janney. He portrays his part very well and is admirably supported by Mary Tamburello as Mrs. Janney. She will win the audience with her pleasing, charming ways.

SHAD SEASON IS UNDER WAY; INDICATIONS GOOD

Cause for Hilarity Among Operators of Fisheries Along Delaware

FIRST FISH ARE CAUGHT

NEW HOPE, Apr. 25.—Fishermen at present have something with which to back up their fish stories in this section these days.

There is cause for hilarity among the operators of the fisheries which dot the Delaware between here and Kintnersville and a few south of here and this is the fact that the shad season is now under way and early indications are that the run this year will be bigger and better than any time during the past ten years.

Last week the first shad was caught near here and since that time, with the exception of a few days, the hauls have been profitable. Water-hauls have been conspicuous by their absence.

It is estimated that approximately 300 shad have been caught during the past five days in the fisheries along the upper Delaware. This is far in advance of this time last year.

The shad are larger this year and the quality seems to be more like the old days when shad fishing was one of the big industries of this section. Contrary to the usual conditions that prevail, roe shad are more numerous than last year. This year it has actually been difficult to get buck shad.

Prices are cheaper than last year at the New Hope and Lambertville fisheries, although some other fisheries are reported to be selling shad at a very slight decrease in price over last season.

At New Hope yesterday the finest roe shad seen in recent years were selling for $1 apiece on the river bank regardless of weight and there were more buyers lining the banks than fish. Buck shad, exceptionally large, sell for 50 cents, the cheapest they have been for a long time.

Frank "Skip" Scarborough, veteran fisherman, whose hauls are made near the bridge on the New Hope side, has caught close to 100 shad since he started to fish this season. Yesterday's haul by "Skip" and his gang, was the best of the season so far.

On the Lambertville side the William Lewis fishery, one of the largest along the river, is ready for larger hauls than have been made during the past several years. Lewis is erecting a new home on the island and is devoting a lot of time between hauls to that work.

Other fisheries, including Purdy Smith, at Lambertville, Neis, at Stockton, Johnny Young, at Lumberville, and fisheries at Point Pleasant and north of there, report better shad hauls this year.

Shad caught in the upper Delaware River have become so famous that in spite of the early season, it is a usual thing to see a dozen or more automobiles close to each fishery, carrying people from various points in Jersey and Pennsylvania, all eager to purchase shad.

One Doylestown hotel man yesterday purchased all that a New Hope fisherman could supply and ordered fifty more for today. This hotel man specializes in "boneless shad" dinners, and does not hesitate to say that shad caught in the upper Delaware is far superior to any other shad.

THIRD WARD GIRLS

All third ward girls interested in Youth Week are requested to meet at Sullivan's field this evening at 6:15 o'clock.

ACCUSED BY THE STATE

Rev. Harry J. Donat, Spinnerstown, on Thursday will explain before Justice of the Peace Gordon H. Luckenbill, Quakertown, why he has been practicing dentistry without a license. The Commonwealth has brought charges against him.

LIBRARIANS TOLD TO SAVE ALL NEWS ITEMS POSSIBLE

Articles and Pictures Regarding Community Life Are Valuable

COUNTY ASS'N. MEETS

Delegates Gather From Bucks and Montgomery Counties; Session at County Seat

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 25.—Declaring that all librarians should aim to collect the first of everything and the last of everything, Miss Florence Ridpath, librarian of Abington Library, who spoke for the Bucks County Library Association at its Spring meeting here yesterday, stated much desirable material in the life of the community can be gotten. Miss Ridpath who has collected local information for the Jenkintown library for the last 30 years, told that it is beneficial and wise to collect local pictures and news stories concerning the history of the community in which they live. "Never read the metropolitan newspapers without a pair of shears in your hand; keep all clippings possible," she advised.

The attendants were welcomed by Miss Lucy R. Price, librarian of the Melinda Cox Free Library, where the meetings were held.

Miss Price told that when the Doylestown Girl Scouts disbanded $75 was turned over to the library, and with this sum children's books were purchased. She also announced that in May the Doylestown Theatre Guild will present a play, the proceeds to be used to purchase books for the library.

Miss Marian Smith, a representative of the Yardley library, described to the delegates the advantages of a bulletin board.

"Libraries in any community are just as much of an asset as are the sewers and the streets, which are paid for by taxpayers' money," stated Miss Susanna Young, Harrisburg. "Youth is in the midst of a rebellion against 'ham' of all kinds. The young readers demand truth today. You simply must know your community to serve them adequately. . . . Are we librarians doing our communities what they are clamoring for, or shall we set their reading standards for them?"

Students of Doylestown school sixth grade, under direction of Miss Mary Swartzlander, librarian of the schools, presented a playlet, "Boy Friend."

As a vice-president for the association was deemed necessary the organization chose Mrs. Kester Eisentrager, Glenside. The president, Miss Anna Jarrett, Hallowell, was in the chair. Miss Jarrett announced the Fall meeting to be held at the Hatboro Union Library. Short report was given by Mrs. Hilda Foster, Fallsington; and Mrs. L. M. Montgomery, of National Farm School, gave several poems.

Libraries represented were: the Mary H. Walter of Bensalem; Eureka, Fallsington, National Farm School.

DISCUSSES DIFFICULTIES OF THE SCHOOL BUDGETS

State Superintendent Says Board Now Faces Many Problems

THE TAX SITUATION

HARRISBURG, Apr. 25.—General difficulties faced by Pennsylvania school board members in preparing balanced budgets for the next school year were discussed today by Dr. James N. Rule, Superintendent of Public Instruction. According to the school law, district directors must prepare and adopt budgets during April and May.

Near-collapse of real estate values is reacting as a serious handicap and indicates need for revision of the present system of local school support, the superintendent said. The general situation he outlined as follows:

"Under the existing form of school district organization the wealthiest school district has an assessed valuation per teacher 181 times that of the poorest. And yet the State reimburses the poorer district at a rate but one and one-half times greater than it does the wealthier. Neither the form of school organization nor the degree of State support provides a square deal for either pupil or taxpayer."

The tax rate in fourth class districts ranges from $1.50 per capita tax and no millage to 47 mills and $3.00 per capita tax.

"Really, which comprises probably not more than 30 per cent. of our taxable wealth carries 85 per cent. of the school tax load. With the collapse of real estate values and tax revenues accruing therefrom has come in many areas a near-collapse of local sources of school support. This shortage will, it is estimated, amount this year to approximately thirty millions out of a normal annual school tax collection of approximately $140,000,000."

"Some districts face a 75 per cent.

Storm Forces Aviator Down at Yardley Field

Caught in the electrical storm while on his way home early last night, Verne Lewis, 34 years old, an aviator, of Clark Summit, near Scranton, Pa., was forced to make a landing in a cornfield on the farm of Frank Robinson, River Road, at Yardley.

He left the machine, a Curtis monoplane, at the farm and went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gunkel, 459 Norway avenue, Trenton, where he spent the night. He planned to fly back to Scranton this morning.

Lewis, who is employed at a Scranton airport, left that place yesterday noon to take to the Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, a man who had received a fractured skull in an automobile accident a few days ago.

The flier left Camden early last evening and reached a point between Doylestown and Allentown when he encountered the storm. He decided to land at Mercer Airport, but the light at that field had not yet been turned on and Lewis was unable to find the place. He was directly along the River Road, about a mile above Yardley, when he came down. The plane was not damaged and the pilot escaped injury.

JAPANESE PRESS UNDER CENSOR'S BAN

Warned Not To Publish Any Stories Concerning "Hands Off" Policy

FOUR POINTS IN BAN

TOKYO, April 25.—Having boldly proclaimed to the world her new policy warning other nations to keep "hands off" China, Japan today embarked upon a program of silence apparently to allow a calm to settle over the world-wide storm her announcement provoked.

All Japanese editors, International News Service learned on good authority, were warned not to publish any stories concerning, in any way, four detailed points on the Japanese naval policy. In addition, the Foreign Office told this correspondent that no comment could be made on the current attitude toward Japan's new plan or on the British request for elucidation unless Japan finds herself "obliged to do so."

Following are the four points of the news ban forced upon Japanese newspapers:

1.—There must be no stories relating to the formation of the committee which is drafting the Japanese naval policy in preparation for next year's naval conference.

2.—No stories can be published forecasting the "official" Japanese view on the conference and matters alluding to it.

3.—Suggestions that Japan would agree to renew the present 10-10-7 Naval Ration provided the great powers grant recognition to Manchukuo, and provided immediate independence is given the Philippines, must not be mentioned henceforth.

4.—No stories must be printed to the effect that unless Tokyo's demand for increased naval ratio are granted Japan will withdraw from the naval conference and abandon the present treaty agreement.

Success Marks Efforts Of Card Party Sponsors

Unusual success marked the efforts of the members of the Cadet Booster Association last evening, at the card party given under their auspices in A. O. H. Hall.

Highest scores attained in pinocle were: S. Ennis, 840; J. Nills, 813; Harry Mossbrook, 768; Mrs. M. Taylor, 766; Mrs. E. Ratcliffe, 764.

Those attaining highest scores in "500" were: Mrs. Sadie McGinley, 3889; Miss Angeline Riley, 3390; Mrs. Joseph Duffy, 3390; E. H. Middleton, 3290; Mrs. E. Mulligan, 3050.

GOVERNOR AND PARTY TO RETURN

Harrisburg, Apr. 25.—Having laid the state's critical relief situation before Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, Governor Gifford Pinchot, accompanied by his wife, and Eric H. Biddle, today was expected to hazard another air journey back to Harrisburg. The plane carrying Mr. and Mrs. Pinchot and Biddle, state relief director, made an emergency landing at Bethesda, Maryland, when Lieut. Fred Nelson sighted a rainstorm over Washington. They completed the trip by automobile last night. After discussing the Pennsylvania situation with Hopkins, Governor and Mrs. Pinchot were guests of honor at a dinner given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House at which 60 other invited guests were present.

Hopkins was forced to leave the conference to deliver a speech and his assistant stated no definite results were achieved. It was not learned whether further conference were planned for today. In his demands for Federal aid for Pennsylvania, Governor Pinchot informed Hopkins the state was unable to provide a share of the $115,000,000 program planned to carry relief through next February.

AWAIT COURT RECORDS

Harrisburg, Apr. 25.—Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish today awaited the arrival of court records from California, allegedly involving R. S. Clymer, head of the Royal Fraternal Association, Quakertown, before acting on Clymer's application for registration of the title of his body in this state. W. S. Snyder, Harrisburg counsel for the Ancient Mystical Order, Rosi Crucias, San Jose, California, which opposed the application, told Beamish at a hearing on the request for registration that Clymer had been a defendant in a law suit in California's Superior Court. When Snyder was unable to give details of the action, Beamish ordered the case postponed until records could be obtained.

FIGHT IMPENDS

Washington, D. C., Apr. 25.—A drastic legislative fight during the closing days of Congress to secure the future of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's favorite Subsistence Homestead project was prepared today. Determined to remove any obstruction to the plans of the First Lady, a group of Democrats planned a battle for legislation authorizing the erection of a factory on the project at Reedsville, W. Va. Mrs. Roosevelt, who has given much of her time to the development of the project for unemployed miners, may be invited to appear before a Congressional committee to make a personal appeal for action. Testimony of a President's wife would shatter Congressional precedent. The new proposal is to authorize the allotment of not over $650,000 from P. W. A., to build and operate an industrial plant at Reedsville which will manufacture equipment for third-class post offices.

DEMAND CREDIT CREATION

Washington, D. C., April 25.—The creation of a Federal supervised "Credit Union System to furnish $2,000,000,000 annually for credit needed by the average man on the street, was demanded on Capitol Hill today as a final spur to national recovery. This credit would be extended the average salaried man and wage earner through formation of a Consumers' Credit Union under supervision of the government. A bill setting up a list of agencies has favorable report from the Senate Banking Committee. Sponsors of the legislation demand its enactment on the ground that consumers were being gouged by usurious interest rates by the purchasers. They argued that Congress has extended Federal aid to banks, farmers, railroads and industry but thus far has failed to do anything to make credit easier for the "little fellow."

LIGHTNING STRIKES A BARN; DAMAGE IS $5,500

Farmer and Helpers See The Flames Leap From Building Shortly After Bolt

IN NORTHAMPTON TWP.

As Harry Walton, Northampton Township farmer, stood on the porch of his home with some of his farmhands early last evening, he saw flames leap from the barn on the premises five minutes after a swift streak of lightning.

Three fire companies were sent for, and the farmer and his helpers hurriedly led two horses and two cows to safety.

With the arrival of firemen from the Richboro, Southampton and Trevoose Companies, hose lines were laid from a stream 2,000 feet from the barn. Thus the numerous out-buildings on the premises were saved, although three were considerably scorched.

Crops from two seasons were entire losses, and farm machinery which was kept in the barn was destroyed.

The farm, located on the Churchville-Holland Road, is owned by David Applegate.

The loss on the building, a stone barn, is estimated at $4,000, and loss on the contents is given at $1,500. The barn was insured, and some insurance was carried on the contents.

The barn was not rodded. The fire occurred at seven o'clock.

Boy Scouts To Stage Card Party Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night in St. James's parish house a card party will be given by the Boy Scouts. They have a large and varied collection of prizes and these will be awarded to the winners in "500", pinocle, bridge and rump.

The proceeds are to be used for camping expenses this summer at Camp Buccoo.

THREE SPEAKERS INTEREST SUNDAY SCHOOL DELEGATES

30th Annual Convention of Fourth District Schools Takes Place

AT SOUTH LANGHORNE

Reelect Eugene Watson, Newtown, as President; Supper Served

SOUTH LANGHORNE, April 25.—Delegates totalling 125 answered the roll call at the session of the 30th annual convention of the Fourth District Sabbath School Union of Bucks County, in Oakhurst Chapel, here, last evening. The initial meeting during the afternoon attracted about 50 men and women, and young folks, with the gatherings being greatly augmented in the evening.

Three addresses featured the two meetings, these being delivered by: the Rev. Jacob A. Long, pastor of Newtown Presbyterian Church; the Rev. H. Lewis Cutler, in charge of the Wyncote Presbyterian Church; and Carl H. Morgan, T. H. D., of Collingswood, N. J., director of the Collegiate Department of the Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary. The two former spoke in the afternoon, while the Rev. Morgan delivered the message of the evening.

The presiding officer was Eugene F. Watson, Newtown, president of the union. The Rev. Herbert J. Gerhardt, pastor of the church in which the convention was held, welcomed the delegates during the afternoon. Other numbers on the program for the first meeting were: Devotional service, the Rev. T. William Smith, pastor of Halmerville M. E. Church; solos, Mrs. Julian T. Hammond, of Newtown; reports of officers. Singing was led by the Rev. Harold A. Myatt, of the Davisville Baptist Church.

The topic selected by the Rev. Jacob A. Long, pastor of Newtown Presbyterian Church, during the afternoon, was "Evangelism in the Church School." That the great commission was not given to the Christian ministers was forcibly brought to the fore. "It was given to the Church—to all the followers of Jesus Christ. The responsibility is placed on all Christians. And we don't win men and women to Christ by the power of our own personality. Christ wins them to Himself through men and women everywhere used as channels through whom he might work."

In answer to his own question "Just what is the Church School for, as constituted in this day of ours?" the Rev. Long stated that the average Sunday School might be characterized by the lack of a definite service. He mentioned also that the Church School has taken over some of the duties formerly cared for in the home—the learning of the fundamentals of religion, and its vital meaning to mankind. "We have a definite function—to teach boys and girls and men and women—to teach them the Word of God. . . . In this matter of evangelism in Church School work there is something we can't count up, and make a definite record of, as we can the attendance, the collection, and so on." The passage including the great commission was interpreted by the Rev. Long to mean that each follower of Jesus Christ should go into all parts of his or her individual world, and tell of Him, and His love, thus making it possible for the whole world to get the Gospel. "This whole matter of evangelism is a matter of witnessing," added the Newtown pastor, "the evangelistic program is simple—just the telling of things we have experienced in the heart. The individual witnessing on the part of the Sunday School teachers and others as to the power of Jesus Christ is what counts." Then he quoted, "It is far better not to have been born than to have been born again."

The Rev. Long also told that no one ought to be given the privilege of teaching boys and girls in the Sunday Schools unless they have had a definite experience themselves. "We need men and women consecrated to their task."

The second speaker for the afternoon session was the Rev. H. Lewis Cutler, of the Wyncote Presbyterian Church, whose fervor-filled message to this association last year was so much appreciated he was invited to return to again address the workers. He spoke of "Facing Realities," and the three great realities to which he gave attention were, "God, Love and Salvation." This broad subject was exceptionally well handled.

"All of us, young and old, know what it means at times to be overcome by the seeming futility of things, and know what it means to feel lonely." The gathering was then told of its wonderful opportunity because the work involved pertains to the souls of men. "But before we attempt any program or methods we must experience much." In referring to the reality of God the Rev. Cutler said, "Life may beat us down, but as long as there is God we can stand it. He is a reality in Whom we can find peace and strength. God is a necessity, a reality, and as teachers in the Sabbath Schools

NEW "FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH"

Science now tells us that if Ponce de Leon had eaten common foods containing vitamin G he wouldn't have crossed the uncharted seas in search of the fountain of youth in Florida. Although specific use of this vitamin has not been developed fully as yet, its discoverer asserts that it promises "lengthened youth for the human race."

Will not the adolescent in their eager pursuit of maturity forebear tomatoes, spinach, liver, yeast and other essential foods containing the youth-preserving and old-age defying vitamin G? And will not men and women who should be growing up gorge themselves on these self-same foods, thus depriving the country of all maturity and making it a land of eternal youth?

Here is glorious news for those who desire eternal youth, but it is likely to complicate rather than simplify one of the greatest problems of life—that of growing old.

Should this news get abroad, the old will act childish to escape the spinach diet and spinsters will not dare ask for vitamin G foods for fear of confessing the advancing years.

Will science never learn to leave well enough alone? Here is a system that has endured through the ages, and for all the complaints hears from both young and old it has worked well. Science might improve upon nature but youth would still look wistfully forward and old age wistfully backward.

SPEED IS RELATIVE

New York's first horse car, built in 1855 and representing the first type of fare-box car, has been placed in a museum to preserve the evidence of one obsolete and abandoned link in the development of city transit.

Museum visitors will find it hard to believe that the first appearance of these cars was accompanied by some misgivings and protests. It was charged that the enterprise was speculative and feared that the cars would be noisy, disturb Sunday worshippers and, because of their "extreme speed," would endanger life and limb.

More fuss was made over the inauguration of this actually slow and safe transportation service than was made by a later generation when the first transcontinental air line was opened. But humanity has become acclimated to noise and speed.

Moderate complaints more of quiet Sundays and holidays and of slow motion on the rails and roads than it does of noise and speed. Its only anxiety or regards speed is getting there in the shortest possible time with the greatest possible comfort. Millions speed from here to there and back again every day and night unmindful of the dangers involved in modern motoring, and the air lines have more business than plane facilities.

Half a million spies are reported working in Europe. They represent a costly luxury. If the disarmament conference should collapse, why not call a conference for the abolition of espionage?

The brain trust boys, now occupying the front line trenches in the war on the depression, may find themselves qualified some day for a bonus—provided anything is left after financing of the new deal is completed.

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"
by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER XXXI

"Is it really necessary," he wondered aloud, "for each of your American financial institutions to maintain a private army for the protection of treasure in transit?"

"I guess so," Fenno replied. "Anyway, they all seem to do it."

Maurice had a dim smile. If he was to consider this military stalwart at all a fair criterion of the provisions for the security of the jewels that he would have to cope with, it wasn't going to be so simple to make the boast good that la Boyce last night had taunted him into uttering—that he would have bagged the lot, undetected and unaided, within the week.

"If you don't, your old man will," Maurice could still hear the woman twitting him. "Of course, if you want to believe his story, that's your business. But believe it or not, it's just like I'm telling you: all this gab about reformation is plain elocution. I'll have to hand it to the old boy, at that; he's clever—he props his bluff up with such a straight face that he's put it over on an awful lot of people that ought to know better. Take this dick Crane, for instance: he's one wise guy, but your papa's got him kidded so hard he'll never get cured. But not little me, and not the push I train with at home—not those old-timers, for one little minute, nor anybody else that's on the inside looking out. We can tell the world the Lone Wolf still pulls a prowl every time the feeling comes over him that it's better to be restless than rusty. What he gets away with is simply murder."

"Murder?" Maurice had at this expostulated.

"Figure of speech, dearie. Murder's too easy. Way things are at home these days, plain everyday murders go for anywhere from ten dollars to a hundred; it's only the fancy jobs that cost anything near a telephone number. Now, what I mean, when your old man takes a notion to strut his stuff again, the job is usually a classic. Take these Habsburg emeralds, now; if you don't believe his claws are itching for them, you're cuckoo. If we don't watch out, he'll snatch them right out from under our noses. And here's friend Rajah simply aching to hand over two hundred grand to anybody that will fix it so he can add them to the Crown Treasure of Ladore—restore them to it, rather, if there's any truth in the yarn he tells about their having come from it in the first place. I'm slipping you the tip, you understand, because you're a nice kid with your way to make, and I like you; so, if you're as smart as you let on, and I believe you are, you'll beat your old man to it and have something to laugh over with him when this trip's history, and you and he are all reconciled up and pals again."

Maurice had here a masked smile of reminiscence.

But what a weird amusing creature! And what luck, to have fallen in with her—if for nothing else because he would otherwise have been handicapped by such ignorance of American slang that he could hardly hope to make himself understood on landing, much less get the sense of what was said to him!

Impossible to take her seriously, of course. He meant, as a woman. Making every allowance for the fact that any man with Fenno in mind must inevitably see most other women out of drawing, the Boyce was none the less a curious—handsome as you please, but outrageous altogether. . . . But even more impossible to dispute her arguments, which dovetailed so nicely with his unconfessed convictions. Hadn't he been from the first a helpless skeptic in respect of his father's pretensions, at heart persuaded that the spirit of the old Lanyard, like a ghost persevering to pursue his awful occasions in a tenement all made over and modernized, refurbished and refurbished, especially to discourage him?

And now this woman turned up with her allegations that chimed so truly with the counsels of experience:

"Don't take my word for it, Morrie boy; wait till we get ashore and I fix it for you to listen in on the Underground and hear what it knows about the Lone Wolf and the soft-shoe act he pulls backstage, behind that beautiful false front of M. Lanyard, art-expert, extradiary, of Delibes et Cie, Paris."

"But I do not understand. How should your American underworld know so much about what goes on in ours?"

"That just shows what an innocent it is! Listen, baby: what you call the underworld isn't any national institution—it's international. Stands to reason it's got to be. If the swell mobs all over didn't keep in touch and more or less pull together, they'd be loony. Suppose some New York crook, now, makes herself she could estrange him from Fenno.

It was all very interesting, that plunge from the pier to the heart of town, all very curious and stimulating, if widely untrue to expectations kindled by first sight of New York from the air—the dream city of an elfin cubist realized in jeweled walls of mist and moonshine by the margin of a twilight sea. But to realize that magic promise, its dwellings would have to be all ivory and opal, its pavements seamless mother-of-pearl on which chariots like living bijoux coursed, its very air aromatic as the fabled breath of Araby—and there could have

"Is it really necessary for each of your American financial institutions to maintain a private army for the protection of treasure in transit?" asked Maurice.

a big haul; how's he going to get all his out of it if he can only do business with local fences that the cops are all the time keeping cases on? His only show to get a break is to have things fixed so he can ship the junk abroad to be sold piecemeal in Paris and London and Berlin—all over. Or say he's been spotted or squealed on, and has to take it on the lam—how's he going to find a safe hide-away on the other side without there's somebody been cabled to be on hand when he lands and look out for him?"

Memory of that conversation grew more vivid, the more one ruminated on it. For the moment it was almost as though Maurice stood with the woman at the rail again, staring away into the matted dark, and was aware once more of the warmth of her shoulder, the perfume of her hair that flitted with his cheek, her confidential undertones that were hardly less caressing.

The next instant he snapped back to the present with a secret shiver of distaste for the recollection. Fenno was speaking to him, and the frank deep kindness that warmed her voice stressed unpleasantly the purring innuendo of the other woman's.

Not that he disliked the Boyce. He knew her kind too well to think the less of her for being what she was. He was even grateful to her; but for her good-natured warning and instruction he would in all likelihood have let his father play him for a donkey. But he did hope she wasn't brooding any nonsense, wasn't being so stupid as to flatter been nothing whatever in it of the scenes and smells of West Street and Twenty-third, the lumpy going they afforded that antiquated taxicab.

Neither did Maurice find anything appropriately whimsical in the company of the man-at-arms who shared the supplementary front seats with Fowler, and with a hand ominously poised on the grip of his weapon, divided attention between the contingencies of traffic—as if looking to see danger manifest at any instant in the welter—and the charms of Fenno, to which he was unmistakably alive.

More or less askance, while playing up to Fenno's patter in the role of guide extempore, Maurice took stock of that young man; a type by no means new to him, boasting countless counterparts in every land, a cheap type, hard and cold and self-assertive to the point of open truculence—in a word—brassy. Their eyes at one time met, and the guard's were not the first to fall. Cool insolence played in them, and the chronic cast of his lips. Maurice made an end by letting his lids droop as if with fatigue and gave exclusive heed again to Fenno. Uneasiness none the less crawled in his temper. There had been that in the guard's look which hinted at a secret bond of fellowship—presumptuousness to Maurice unaccountable. If he bristled, however, he took good care not to show it, and was at pains to seem interested only in what Fenno was saying.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS!

This week marks the birthday of the first American newspaper

JOHN CAMPBELL, colonial postmaster of Boston, certainly set a good example in the liberal use of the mails.

Campbell corresponded regularly with all the Colonial Governors of New England, keeping them posted on Boston news. So regular and voluminous was this correspondence that Campbell's letters finally emerged in the form of a printed pamphlet called "The Boston News Letter." And this was the first regularly and continuously published newspaper in America, appearing weekly from the last week in April, 1704, to the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The newspaper carried advertisements . . . from its very first issue! And this advertising, telling the reader where to obtain the goods that he sought for his home or his farm or his business, lifted the mere friendly chronicle of village affairs into the realm of a service to the community. The newsletters, plus advertising, became a helpful, informative, and educational institution.

Today, as in 1704, and all the years between, the advertisements are your guide-posts to honest, dependable merchandise at a fair price.

Three Speakers Interest Sunday School Delegates

We need to give the young people a vital sense of reality of God, without Whom life must eventually prove to be ravel and tatters."

In speaking of the reality of love, the speaker elaborated upon complications and sorrow through love. "There are three things we can do in times of sorrow—we can run from it, deny these things exist, or turn to the Cross. . . . But the conflicting values of life meet at the Cross and fit together."

Next taking up Salvation, the speaker from Wyncote impressed upon his listeners the fact that a Christian cannot want to be in harmony with the world when he hears the voice of the atheist, of the criminal and others in different keys. "We must face the reality that life is strife. But Christ gave Himself and thus provided the way to Salvation. . . . Salvation cannot be bought or won. It can't be gained that way. It can only be gained by receiving in an act of faith. . . . These are great realities, the reality of God and of Love leading us to Him, and of Salvation which God gives and which Christ has provided. May God use us to bring these realities to people everywhere!"

The secretary, Mrs. E. D. Osterhout, Langhorne, reported that with but one exception enrollment in the 22 schools in the district had increased. It was also stated that several of the schools have vacation church schools; and Langhorne M. E., Langhorne African M. E. and the Oxford Valley M. E.

With the acceptance of the nominating committee's report, the following were duly elected as officers of the association: President, Mr. Watson; vice-president, Wallace Rex, Churchville; secretary, Mrs. E. D. Osterhout, Langhorne; treasurer, Joseph A. Addis, Ivyland Superintendents—Leadership, Miss Frances Hellyer, Langhorne; children's division, Miss Marian Leedom, Southampton; adult division and home department, Mrs. Gladys A. Bennett, Newtown; missionary, Mrs. Gilbert Bonnell, Langhorne; temperance, Mrs. Jesse Carter, Langhorne; young people's division, Estelle Pownall, Newtown; vacation Bible and week-day training, Miss Elizabeth Sedle, Langhorne. Music during the evening was by the choir of the Oakhurst Chapel; and the Rev. William A. Hawley, pastor of Newtown Baptist Church, had charge of the devotions.

Dr. Morgan, the evening speaker, dealt with the goal toward which Sabbath School workers are striving, and spoke of how that goal might be obtained. He stated he was convinced that the Schools need but a minimum of organization: "The simpler the organization, the more responsive the work." He added that if Christianity is life, it must begin where all life does, with birth, and continued by placing the emphasis of Sunday School work on new life, or evangelism.

The things that tend to detract from the worship service in the Sabbath School were brought up in the discourse. "Don't take the focus of the scholars from the higher things by fond music and the like," he admonished. The hope for more attractive printed Bibles was spoken of, the belief being advanced the Book should be printed in better style, with larger type, illustrations, and not only with black binding. "And it is profitable to read to the young people passages occasionally from one of the newer translations. This will help to clarify many messages from the Book, as it will be in a form they can understand."

stand." The speaker also emphasized that "The young people should be brought to recognize the underlying principles of Jesus Christ pertaining to life. . . . The first thing we should all do is to find out what hinders our life, and then apply to it the principle of love."

All Sabbath Schools in the townships of Northampton, Southampton, Newtown, Lower Makefield, and Middletown, as well as the boroughs in that section were invited to participate in the convention meetings. Supper was served at the Oakhurst Chapel.

Discusses Difficulties Of The School Budget

reduction in tax collections. How and when these tax delinquencies will be collected, particularly in rural and industrial areas, is difficult to estimate. In any case it has been clearly demonstrated that really cannot continue to bear so unjust and disproportionate a share of the burden of school support. With the collapse in real estate values and tax revenues will come a collapse in our system of public schools, unless appropriate remedies are promptly found. The drop in local tax collections thus far this calendar year is far worse than anticipated or reported by school districts. Approximately 600 districts have applied for special aid, most of them worthy cases.

"The regular State school appropriation was reduced for all districts for the biennium 10 per cent. (approximately $5,000,000). This amounts to 20 per cent. for the second year of the biennium, that is during 1934-35, when the cut becomes operative."

HIGH SCHOOL USES THREE PITCHERS TO WIN

By Jack Orr

Coach Dougherty's Bristol High "Bunnies" traveled to Willow Grove yesterday to win their fourth victory of the season, at the expense of the Upper Moreland Nine, 12-10.

This was Bristol's third consecutive win on rival grounds and have still to taste defeat on their opponents' diamonds.

The game was more one-sided than the score indicates. Bristol outthrew their Willow Grove rivals 15-7 and errors behind the home club helped to mount the "Bunnies' total.

The Red and Gray led off by batting around in the opening canto and scoring six runs on five hits. Upper Moreland managed to stay fairly close, due to Zefferi's wildness and scored three times on one hit.

In the second inning Bristol gained three scores on two errors and Hibbs' screaming home-run to left-center. The home club retaliated by scoring four times on three errors and Templeton's single to left.

The "Bunnies" added two more in the fourth as Rockhill and Spencer both hit safely. The scoring was finished by the home boys in the fifth when they counted three more times on three walks and two singles, making the count, 12-10. Both teams were held scoreless for the last two cantos.

Bristol plays host to the Morrisville "Bulldogs" on Thursday on the local diamond.

PARK DAMAGED BY FIRE

TRENTON, N. J., Apr. 25—Planes of undetermined origin last night destroyed the Old Mill and seriously damaged the scenic railway at Woodlawn Park, resulting in a loss of nearly $10,000. The two ride devices were the only ones left in the park, which suffered serious losses by fire during the past few years.

Insull Subterfuge

Wearing confidential while en route to the United States on the S.S. Exilona, Samuel Insull described to newspaper correspondents how he fooled Greek police. A little black hair dye and removal of his spectacles changed the erstwhile Chicago utilities czar from the man at top to the more youthful one below.

STEELE AND CALZA IN ARENA BOUT TONIGHT

TRENTON, April 25—The best wrestling card of the season from a competitive standpoint, is scheduled by Johnny Ipp for his mat party at the Arena tonight. The feature two-falls-out-of-three contest will bring together the powerful Californian, Ray Steele, against the premier Italian grappler, George Calza.

Steele, one of the most formidable bone-benders in the game, stakes plenty in facing the rugged Italian. One of the outstanding box-office names, Ray meets a man who has been a thorn in the side of the various champions and contenders. Neither man has ever won a title, but they have often upset the plans and ambitions of other enterprising young matmen.

Calza is also one of the prima donna of the game. A big money getter, he has faced the top-notchers and they will attest to his ability. In local matches he easily won over Henry Piers and two weeks ago toyed with Al Kalsey, of Germany, before pinning him. Neither Calza nor Steele have ever been pinned on the local canvas and one of the most gruelling battles ever witnessed here should ensue when these two mastodons of matland collide.

Librarians Told To Save All News Items Possible

Free Library of Solebury and New Hope, Newtown, Point Pleasant, Yardley, Doylestown high school, Ambler public, Hatboro Union, Lansdale, Ordland, Jenkintown, Glenside, North Wales, and the Perkaskie-Sellersville high school. There were also present delegates from the New Britain Literary Society.

A delegate from Newtown library announced that recently that library had presented to Bucks County prison here 199 old books and a number of magazines. Fifty books were also given to the Tabor Home, Doylestown. This delegate announced that of the 364 original books in the Newtown library there had been discovered 204; and a catalogue of 1829 had been re-discovered.

For Fallsington library Mrs. Foster explained that it is the only library in the county which co-operates with the local schools in maintaining library facilities. Miss Ruth Baum, librarian at the Perkaskie-Sellersville school library, reported that neither one of those boroughs maintains a library but that the residents are permitted to take books from the school library.

Lunch was served in the Doylestown high school cafeteria, and the delegates were taken on a tour of inspection of the school library.

bidder on stone except for special requirement stone such as trap rock, which will be ordered from the General Crushed Stone Company. The contract for "Specification E" (pre-mixed material), was awarded to the General Crushed Stone Company. Bids of H. Martin, Rushland; Union Paving Company and Suburban Construction Company were rejected.

The contract to furnish surface treatment oil to the Borough was awarded to Koppers Products Company at 12½ cents a gallon and the bids of Barrett Company, U. G. I., Tobish, Bituminous Service Company,

Good Roads Company and Valite Company were rejected. The low bidder on surface treatment oil was Bituminous Service Company with a rate of 105 cents per gallon, but after a lengthy consideration of the service rendered by the Koppers Products Company and the grade of their material—Tarmac—it was deemed advisable to renew the contract with William G. McCahan, of Langhorne, representing Koppers Products Company.

The Doylestown High School student council, represented at the meeting, was granted the privilege of placing a banner across Main street, subject to the approval of the State Highway Department, for the purpose of advertising a school play.

The water committee was given the authority to install a meter in the only house in Doylestown that does not have a meter.

Open New Bids for Airmail

Another stage in the business of returning the airmail to private companies is reached as Postmaster General Farley opens contract bids submitted by 43 companies for 21 airmail routes. At left is Harlee dranch, second Assistant Postmaster General. Bidding was lowest ever made, it was revealed.

The way tobacco is cut has a lot to do with the way Chesterfield burns and tastes

There are many different ways of cutting tobacco.

A long time ago, it used to be cut on what was known as a Pease Cutter, but this darkened the tobacco, and it was not uniform.

The cutters today are the most improved, modern, up-to-the-minute type. They cut uniformly, and cut in long shreds.

The tobacco in Chesterfield is cut right—you can judge for yourself how Chesterfields burn and how they taste.

Everything that science knows is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder . . . the cigarette that tastes better.
